MOST school owners and administrators will easily brand their schools as pacesetters and grounds for raising future leaders. However, some are often the last to catch on to positive trends and changes in the education field and one of the obvious changes going on in the field right now is the use of computers to deliver tests and exams and arguably the best and most comprehensive product in that field at the moment is the EasiPREP CBT edition for schools.

The EasiPREP CBT School Edition allows schools to create and administer their own computer-based tests and exams using their own questions and on their own school computer network or computer lab. It is also bundled with over 24,000 questions and answers across 13 subjects for JAMB UTME and WAEC & NECO SSCE that students can practice and prepare with and which can be used to test and examine the students.

EasiPREP CBT School Network Edition offers many features which make it unique and make it ideal for exam preparation and administration, such as:

- Automatic shuffling of questions and answers to prevent or eliminate cheating even when students sit beside each other
- Support for diagrams and equations in both questions and answer options, for mathematics and science subjects
- Support for multiple question types including true or false, yes or no and multiple choice questions with up to 5 options
- Students can skip questions, come back and review questions just like in normal examinations and tests
- Results of tests and exams are stored on the central server and can be exported to Microsoft Excel and CSV formats
- Support for Teacher console where teachers can easily set and import exam questions into the system
- Support for setting questions using normal word processors like MS Word, WordPad or Notepad and importing these questions automatically into the EasiPREP CBT Server

JAMB is already offering computer-based exams because of its obvious benefits for same day results while tertiary institutions are increasingly adopting computer-based Post UTME screening and some even for internal examinations.

Smart schools are also taking the decision and not waiting to be the last to join the CBT band-wagon with its obvious benefits.

A KEY TO BETTER PERFORMANCE FROM YOUR STUDENTS

Several smart schools are putting EasiPREP CBT solution to use in commendable ways that buttress their places as pacesetters in the education field.

Some of these schools traditionally assess their students in a short quiz or test on a daily or weekly basis. The aim of these frequent assessments is to determine the level of assimilation of students in topics taught during the day or week in question. Too many low scores in these quick assessments may indicate the teachers not communicating enough or the students not grasping the topics and all necessary corrections or steps can be taken when such is the case, rather than waiting for students to perform dismally at the term examinations. Moreover, the term examinations can never be as comprehensive as the daily or weekly assessments. These tests are usually administered with objective answer sheets to ease marking and minimize work load on teachers. In fact for some, the logistics has been a major reason of reducing the frequency of these assessments.

However, with EasiPREP CBT School Edition coming on the scene, it was like a gift out of the heavens for these schools. The EasiPREP CBT solution simply removed all the logistic headaches associated with supervising tests, marking and grading the tests and managing questions for subsequent sets. The quick assessments test can now be as frequent as desired by the schools without any cost overrun as deterrent. This approach has also increase student attentiveness in class because they know they are going to get assessed at the end of school day or school week and no student really relishes failure. The approach also motivates teachers to teach better, because in some cases, the questions for the assessments have been submitted before the start of the school term based on syllabus and the teachers have no power to alter the questions after submission by school rules.

It is therefore not surprising that since the deployment of EasiPREP CBT in this mode, the schools concerned have witnessed appreciable increase in student "in-class" attention and better academic performances!

THE GLISTEN EXPERIENCE: FASTER EXAM RESULTS, LESS STRESS!

Glisten International Academy is a respected and foremost primary and secondary school in Abuja. The school recently adopted EasiPREP CBT School Edition that allows schools to create and administer their own computer-based exams using their own questions. The school promptly put EasiPREP CBT School Edition to use during its next school term examinations with excellent results and feedback from the teachers.

Modelak Arts & Science College, Unity High School and a host of other schools across the country similarly put EasiPREP CBT School Edition to use during their recent school term examinations with great results and feedback from students as well as teachers. Benefits experienced include faster results delivery, zero exam malpractices and reduced logistics compared to paper exams.

Not surprisingly, the benefits cannot be over-rated considering that even JAMB, a national examination body has gone fully computer-based in its annual UTME exam in view of the many benefits.

Kwara trains teachers in 744 public schools on CBT

BIOLA AZEEZ-ILORIN

KWARA State government, in collaboration with private computer education consult, Easiprep Nigeria Limited, has organised a five-day training programme on computer-based testing and exam preparation for national certificate examinations for teachers in 744 junior and senior public secondary schools in the state.

Speaking with Tribune Education in Ilorin during the conclusion of the training programme at the weekend, the consultant for the scheme, Mr. Babs Iwarere, said the programme had been organised in centres at Omu Aran, Offa and Lafiagi in Kwara South, Kwara North senatorial zones.

tertiary institutions in Nigeria.

Iwarere said further: "We discovered that in public schools, teachers have not been introduced to computer-based testing and you find out that these students, when they graduate, encounter problems in writing the UTME – which is computer-based now; and even for admission into tertiary institutions.

"Regardless of the institutions, prospective students have to pass through some pre-admission tests. So, it is necessary that the teachers are introduced to these computers so that they can prepare their students adequately for these examinations, which are becoming computer-based.

"We have selected 744 teachers from all the government-owned junior and secondary schools across the state. The response from the state Ministry of Education has been tremendous. The participants after every exercise have been allowed to assess the training and the feedback has been very encouraging.

"We are recommending it to other states of the federation, particularly

Teachers and students of All Saints' College, Aba Edun Village, Ilorin.
